3. Framework and Objectives of the Program:

A. Admission Requirements

- Students graduating under the new system (LMD):
 - The student must have a good conduct and behavior.
 - The student must hold a Bachelor's degree in Law or a Bachelor's degree in Sharia and Law.
- Students graduating under the old system (Classical):
 - The student must have a good conduct and behavior.
 - The student must hold a Bachelor's degree in Law or a Bachelor's degree in Sharia and Law.

B. Program Objectives

The program has two main aspects:

Theoretical Aspect

This aims to provide the necessary scientific competencies and psychological preparations, enabling the student to:

- Acquire the necessary experiences to understand the nature of disputes that arise within the family.
- Possess the ability to interpret legal texts and apply them properly to serve the benefit and interests of the family.
- Assess the real risks that threaten the family and society in general.

Practical Aspect

This aims to develop the student's individual capacities in terms of:

- Understanding the mechanisms and regulations on which family legislation in both law and Sharia is based.
- The ability to address the issues of the Algerian family and find appropriate solutions.
- The ability to supervise and guide specialists in family affairs in the future.
- C. Targeted Qualifications and Skills
The specialization in Family Law includes various elements related to society and influences public life in its various aspects, including political and economic ones.
- A deep study of this specialization allows the student to understand the nature of family relationships through a vast amount of information and knowledge, from the establishment of the marital relationship to its termination. The student will then be able to offer solutions inspired by Algerian Family Law and Islamic jurisprudence, in accordance with Article 222 of the Algerian Family Code. The stability and progress of society depend on the well-being of the family, which is considered by the legislator as the fundamental unit in the construction of society. This makes us think about the legal and legislative frameworks that are appropriate, by searching to support, amend, or enrich them to serve the interests of individuals, guarantee their rights, and support their freedoms, whether related to the husband, wife, or children. All of this depends on training researchers specialized in family law, with a broad culture and expertise in family legislation.

- D. Regional and National Employment Opportunities for Graduates

Upon obtaining this degree, the student can be employed in the courts by joining the High Judicial School. With excellent training, the graduate will be able to take on the responsibility of issuing judicial rulings in family law cases.

- The student can also become an excellent lawyer, defending rights and truth, especially in cases where divorce is the solution. The student will possess the skills to investigate the reasons and causes, searching for a way out and a solution to all family problems in court.
- Whether as a judge, lawyer, or proficient researcher and academic, through this specialization, the graduate will undoubtedly provide a valuable service to society, contributing to creating stability.

E. Pathways to Other Specializations:

- This degree serves as a bridge towards enrolling in a PhD program, ensuring the continuity of specialized research work in this field.
- It can also establish specialized judicial sectors for family law cases.
- This specialization can be a key to training imams, inspectors, counselors, and legal advisors in family law matters.

F. Indicators for Monitoring the Training Project:

The student can continue their studies and enroll in a PhD program in the same specialization in the following areas:

- Family Law
- Civil Status Law
- Family Disputes

G. Supervisory Capacities:

- Up to 50 students can be enrolled.
